

Pointer: Draw attention to important things

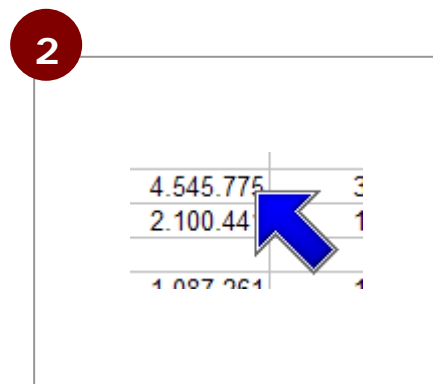

With Netviewer's Pointer function, you can draw your session partner's attention to important things, such as an incorrect number in a calculation. You do not need remote control rights to do this.

It is not possible to control the computer remotely or alter data with the pointer.

Simply click in the Netviewer window or move the mouse cursor while holding the left mouse button depressed.

The session partner will then see the pointer at this position on the screen.
